Business Description (251 Words):

The Climate Web is a collective intelligence program that brings together the knowledge and insights of thousands of experts worldwide on how to address climate change. It is based on more than 20,000 hours of meticulous knowledge curation, creating a centralized database of diverse and reliable climate resources. Whether you are a business or policy maker, philanthropist, or just someone who cares about the planet, you can use the Climate Web to explore any climate topic you are interested in. Our library includes books, reports, videos, and news articles, organized by thousands of Index Entries and Topical Headings, to make your knowledge discovery process easier than ever.

The Climate Web is not a static platform; it is constantly evolving and growing with the latest climate information. With Premium Access, you can get more than 2,000 hours of additional knowledge curation each year, on top of the existing base of 25,000+ hours. This feature will serve as your personal climate change research assistant, keeping you updated with the latest trends, developments, and solutions.

The Climate Web is much more than a filing cabinet or a database; it is a powerful tool for learning and creating actionable change. It is the product of more than 30 years of advisory expertise. It is also the result of our passion and dedication to addressing climate change. We invite you to join us in this journey and become part of our community. Together, we can make a difference for ourselves and future generations.
