Subject line: This Research-Backed Framework Is Changing Workplaces

Email body:

It's 2025, and burnout shouldn't still be a problem... but here we are. A staggering 77% of employees say they've felt burned out at work.

That's why we're kicking off Season 3 of Burnout Banter with an episode focused on real solutions. Jeff and Rachelle break down the SMART framework, a research-backed approach to creating healthier, more sustainable workplaces. You'll hear strategies to rethink workloads, create meaningful work, and build stronger team connections.

If you're ready to finally put an end to burnout this year, this episode is the perfect place to start.

Subject line: The Burnout Fix Your Team Needs in 2025

Email body:

You know those days when everyone on your team seems completely wiped out? I just heard from a manager who was dealing with the same thing. She tried everything: offering flexible schedules, buying team lunches, even bringing in a workplace wellness speaker. Nothing stuck.

Then she switched to one of the research-backed ideas we shared in our latest Burnout Banter episode. A few weeks later, her team was energized and focused again.

If you haven't listened to the Season 3 opener yet, you need to hear how she turned things around. It's a simple strategy from the SMART framework, and it's just one of the ideas we shared in the episode.

Give it a listen here. Your team's burnout fix might be closer than you think.
